In its sixth year of partnership, the Delta Regional Authority and the Department of Defense are bringing the Innovative Readiness Training program to the Delta region through four medical missions in three states: Arkansas, Illinois, and Louisiana.

These medical missions provide quality medical care by licensed medical professionals-serving in our reserve forces-to residents of rural communities that otherwise have little to no access to quality health care. Continuing our partnership with the Health Resources & Services Administration, DRA will be providing information and resources to patients regarding opportunities to enroll in health insurance and receive further medical support.
